COMMUNICATIONS FOR CAREER DEVELOPMENT
ADDRESSING THE NEEDS OF INTERNATIONAL STUDENTS AND PLANTING THE SEEDS FOR A BRIGHT FUTURE

The Communications for Career Development workshop series is a prerequisite for international graduate students who need to advance their professional communication skills prior to taking the Graduate Career Development Introduction Seminars (GCDI). This six-module workshop series has been designed to improve the professional communication skills of international graduate students at Bentley University. Students will focus on developing and articulating their personal SWOT (Strengths, Weaknesses, Opportunities and Threats). This workshop series is designed to build a baseline of cultural competence so that students can best utilize Graduate Career Services.

TOPICS INCLUDE:
■ Identifying and articulating individual strengths and weaknesses
■ Exploring the unique opportunities and understanding the challenges that international students face as they begin their career search
■ Becoming familiar with the cultural and professional expectations essential to navigating a career search in the United States
■ Learning American professional etiquette

THE FOCUS of this workshop series is to advance the professional communication skills of international graduate students.
