

Fall 2018 FSL Risk Management Training: Emotional Well-Being Assessment Report

In October, the Office of Student Programs & Engagement partnered with the Office of Wellness & Health Promotion to offer a new risk management training program to the Fraternity & Sorority Life Community that focused on emotional-well-being and resource awareness. The training was interactive, involving activities and discussion, as well as presentation-based, communicating content from OWHP staff.

Topics covered include:

- Concepts and definitions related to risk management, emotional well-being, and stigma reduction
- Warning signs that indicate an individual or a friend may be experiencing a mental health concern
- Resources at Bentley and beyond that are available for individuals experiencing a mental health concern

In total, 73% of on-campus Fraternity and Sorority life students completed the risk management training. The remaining members, along with those who studied abroad during Fall 2018, will complete a make-up training in Spring 2019. Each learning outcome was assessed using a Likert scale questionnaire. In addition, participants were asked to respond to four open-response questions. The Likert scale data and a sample of major themes from open response data are captured in the charts below. This positive data demonstrates the effectiveness of the training in achieving the outlined learning outcomes for students.

Please share any feedback you have about today's risk management training

"I thought that it helped us recognize that we all cope in similar and different ways and we can share those with each other"

"It was extremely useful and I think all chapters should have this"

"It was really useful and I think it will make people more comfortable talking to each other"

"Nice to know risk management includes normal feelings, not just extreme ones"

"Very helpful, should be done school wide"
